Australia

Stated hours of operation may change without notice. Some airports are not attended continuously during the hours nominated and notice may be required to obtain service.

At some locations, an after hours call out fee may apply, which is normally calculated by and paid directly to the operator. We recommend pilots phone ahead to check fuel availability and call out fee if applicable.

All information and details are correct at the time of printing, March 2025.

Air bp strongly advise that pilots check with the Airfield Representative at relevant locations to accommodate flight requirements.

first aid

Avgas 100 & Avgas 100 low lead

Eyes

Wash eyes thoroughly with copious quantities of water, ensuring eyelids are held open. Obtain medical advice if any pain or redness develops or persists.

Skin

Wash skin thoroughly with soap and water as soon as reasonably practicable. Remove heavily contaminated clothing and wash underlying skin.

In extreme situations of saturation with this product, drench with water, remove clothing as soon as possible and wash skin with soap and water. Seek medical advice if skin becomes red, swollen or painful.

Jet A-1 & Jet A-1/FSII

Eyes

Wash eyes thoroughly with copious quantities of water, ensuring eyelids are held open. Obtain medical advice if any pain or redness develops or persists.

Skin

Wash skin thoroughly with soap and water as soon as reasonably practicable. Remove heavily contaminated clothing and wash underlying skin.

Ingestion

If swallowed, do not induce vomiting, give a glass of water and contact a doctor or the Poisons Information Centre.

medical advice

Product can be aspirated on swallowing or following regurgitation of stomach contents, and can cause severe and potentially fatal chemical pneumonitis, which will require urgent treatment. Because of the risk of aspiration, induction of vomiting and gastric lavage should be avoided. Gastric lavage should be undertaken only after endotracheal intubation. Monitor for cardiac dysrhythmia. This is general advice only. Please consult your medical advisor. Air bp accepts no responsibility or liability for this advice.

Ingestion

If swallowed, do NOT induce vomiting; obtain medical advice immediately. Except as a deliberate act, the ingestion of large amounts of product is unlikely. If it should occur, do not induce vomiting; obtain medical advice as soon as possible.

If exposure to vapour, mists, or fumes causes drowsiness, headache, blurred vision or irritation of the eyes, nose or throat, remove the source of contamination or move the victim to fresh air.

Ensure airways are clear and have qualified person give oxygen through a facemask if breathing is difficult. Apply artificial respiration if not breathing and seek medical attention.

Monitor breathing and pulse rate and if breathing has failed, or is deemed inadequate, respiration must be assisted, preferably by the mouth-to-mouth method (expired air resuscitation).

Administer external cardiac massage if necessary. Seek medical attention immediately.

Inhalation

If fumes are inhaled, the patient should be removed to fresh air and if recovery is not immediate, medical assistance must be called without delay.

If breathing has failed, respiration must be assisted, preferably by the mouth-to-mouth method (expired air resuscitation).

protective clothing

Wear a face visor or goggles in circumstances where eye contact can accidentally occur. If skin contact is likely, wear impervious protective clothing and/or gloves.

Change heavily contaminated clothing as soon as reasonably practicable and launder before re-use. Thoroughly wet down before removing clothing due to the risk of static discharge igniting vapour. Wash any contaminated underlying skin with soap and water.

safety reminders

misfuelling

Every year around the world a number of aircraft are refuelled with the incorrect grade of fuel. Fortunately this error is usually detected before the aircraft takes off, but sadly this is not always the case. We continue to see reports of incidents and even aircraft crashes resulting from misfuelling.

If an avgas powered aircraft is inadvertently refuelled with jet fuel, there can be sufficient avgas remaining in the aircraft's fuel lines and carburettors to enable the aircraft to taxi and even take off. When the jet fuel reaches the engine, often at a critical time during the take off, the engine can fail and cause a forced landing or worse – the aircraft may crash.

A similar situation can occur if avgas is put into an aircraft which should have been refuelled with jet fuel. Fortunately the consequences of this are usually less serious.

You can help by:

- completing a fuel order form wherever possible
- fitting grade decals adjacent to the fuel ports on your aircraft
- fitting grade selective fuel orifice kits wherever possible (available from most aircraft manufacturers)

And most importantly:

- always nominate the fuel type
- always confirm the fuel type

Note that for almost every misfuelling incident on record, the pilot and refueller did not nominate and confirm the fuel type required.

Ramp checks can be conducted by CASA at any time.
